RE: Category Business Analyst (Evergreen), Canadian Tire Corporation

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for Canadian Tire Corporation's Category Business Analyst opportunity in Toronto. I completed a Master of Business Analytics at Edith Cowan University in Australia and now live in Toronto. The role's focus on customer needs, product lines, robust analysis, category objectives, and the buying organization closely matches the analytical and retail-oriented career I want to build.

As a Data Intern at AYLA Solutions in Australia, I gathered and documented business and reporting requirements, supported SQL-based extraction and validation, prepared advanced Excel reports, and contributed dashboard insights for performance tracking. Agile planning and review sessions strengthened my ability to clarify operational needs, organize analysis, communicate progress, and maintain accurate documentation. This experience developed the disciplined reporting and follow-through needed to support recurring category decisions.

My e-commerce project provides the strongest direct evidence for this role. I modelled customers, products, orders, line items, and payments; defined recognized-revenue and integrity rules; and analyzed customer spend, order frequency, product rankings, monthly revenue, and payment methods before documenting validated recommendations. This work taught me to connect product and customer behaviour with explicit business definitions while checking that conclusions remain traceable to the underlying data.

A Bank of Baroda project adds customer-behaviour analysis using Excel and SQL, while a Google Forms research project developed my ability to collect evidence, identify small-business adoption patterns and barriers, and document recommendations. At Trans Globe Education, I also supported market research, reporting, process updates, and client communication. Across my published repositories, I added repeatable validation, GitHub Actions checks, SQL-grounded AI-assisted findings, and Power BI KPI and dashboard plans.

I have not yet worked in retail category management, managed vendor processes, negotiated with suppliers, or presented assortment recommendations to senior leaders, and I would not overstate that experience. I would bring strong Excel and SQL foundations, customer and product curiosity, careful data-quality habits, and the humility to learn Canadian Tire's category processes, financial measures, vendor routines, and presentation standards. The company's scale, owned brands, e-commerce capabilities, customer purpose, and learning culture make this an exceptional place to contribute and grow.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to discussing how my analytical foundation, customer focus, and learning agility could support Canadian Tire's buying team.

Best regards,
Jainali Mehta
